

'Tis the Season for Hackable Gifts

According to a recent global Intel Security survey

This year, consumers plan to buy new internet-connected devices.

Nearly 1/2 of consumers start using their new devices right away.

96%

claim that the security of their device is at least somewhat important

But wait... less than 1/2 take proper security measures

In fact...

47%

don't know if they are taking the right precautions
